Selected Poetry.

BENNY.

I had told him, Christmas morning,
As he sat upon my knee,
Holding fast his little stockings,
Stuffed as full as full could be,
And attentive listening to me,
With a face demure and mild,
That old Santa Claus, who filled them,
Did not love a naughty child.

"But we'll be good, won't we mother?"
And from off my lap he slid,
Digging deep among the goodies
In his crimson stockings hid;
While I turned me to my table,
Where a tempting goblet stood,
Brimming high with dainty egg-nog,
Sent me by a neighbor good.

But the kitten, there before me,
With his white paw, nothing loth,
Sat by way of entertainment,
Slapping off the shining froth;
And in not the gentlest humor,
At the loss of such a treat,
I confess, I rather rudely
Thrust him into the street.

Then, how Benny's blue eyes kindled!
Gathering up the precious store—
He had busily been pouring
In his tiny pinafore,
With a generous look that shamed me,
Sprang he from the carpet bright,
Showing, by his main indignation,
All a baby's sense of right.

"Come back, Harney!" called he, loudly,
As he held his apron white—
"You shall have my candy rabbit!"
But the door was fastened tight;
So he stood, abashed and silent,
In the centre of the floor,
With dejected look alternate
Between me and on the door.

Then, as by some sudden impulse,
Quickly ran he to the fire,
And while eagerly his bright eyes
Watched the flames go high and higher,
In a brave, clear key he shouted,
Like some lordly little elf,
"Santa Claus, come down de chimney,
Make my mother 'happy herself!"

"I will be a good girl, Benny,"
Said I, feeling the reproof,
And straightaway recalled poor Harney,
Mewing on the gallery roof.
Soon the anger was forgotten,
Laughter chased away the frown,
And they gambolled 'neath the live oaks
Till the dusky night came down.

In my dim, fire-lighted chamber,
Harney purled beneath my chair,
And my play worn boy beside me
Kneled to say his evening prayer:
"God bless father, God bless mother,
God bless sister,"—then a pause,
And the sweet young lips devoutly
Murmured, "God bless Santa Claus!"

He is sleeping,—brown and silken
Lie the lashes, long and meek,
Like caressing, clinging shadows
On his plump and peachy cheek;
And I bend above him, weeping
Thankful tears—Oh, Undeified!
For a woman's crown of glory,
For the blessing of a child.

An Amusing Sketch.

ETHAN SPIKE'S FIRST AND LAST VISIT TO PORTLAND.

"Portland is the all darndest place I ever seed. I was there in '38, to see a little about my going to the Legislature, and such a rum time as I had, you never heard tell of. Did I ever tell you about the ice cream scrape I had?"
We answered in the negative, and he resumed—

"Wall, I'd bin down there, two or three days-pokin' about in every hole, an' tho' I'd seed everything there was to be seed; but one day, toward sundown, I was goin' by a shop in Middle street, that looked wonderfully slick—there was all manner of candy an' peppermints, an' jessamin, an' what nots at the windows. An' then war'n'us with gold letters on 'em, hangin' round the door, tellin' us how they sold Soda Bread and Ice Cream (thar. I says to myself, I have heerd a good deal about this ice cream, an' now I'll be darn'd if I won't see what they're up to. So I puts my hands in my pockets, an' walk'd in kinder careless, an' says to a chap standin' behind the counter—

"Do you keep any ice creams here?"
"Ye sir," says he, "how much'll you have?"
"I considered a minit on it, an' says I—a pint or so."

The young feller's face swelled out, an' he liked to have laugh'd right out, but after a while he ax'd—
"Did you say a pint, sir?"
"Sartin," says I; "but p'raps you don't mind taking a quart."

"Wal, don't you think, the feller anorted right out. Tell yer what, it made me feel sort o' pisen, an' I gave him a look that made him look sober in about a minit, an' when I clenched my fist, an' look'd so 'at him, (here Mr. Spike favord us with the most diabolical expression,) he haul'd in his horns about the quickest, an' handed me a pint of the stuff as perlit as could be. Wal, I tasted a mouthful of it, and found it as cool as the North side o' Bethel Hill in January. I'd half a mind to spit it out, but just then I seed the confectioner chap grinnin' behind the door, which riz my spunk. Gall smash it all, thinks I, I'll not let that white-livered monkey think I'm afeard—I'll eat the darn'd stuff if it freezes my innards. I tell yer what, I'd rather skid a bar, or whip'd a wild cat, but I went it. I eat the whole of it in about a minit.

"Wal, in about a quarter of an hour, I begin to feel kinder gripey about here," continued E. than, pointing to the lower part of his stomach, "an' kept on feelin' no better very fast, till at last it seem'd as though I'd got a steam ingen sawin' shingles in me. I set down on a chair an' bent myself up like a nut cracker, thinkin' I'd grin an' bear it; but I could'n't set still—I twisted and squirmed about like an angle worm on a hook, till at last the chap as gin me the cream, who had bin lookin' on snickerin', says to me—

"Mister," says he, "what ails yer?"
"Ails me!" says I, "that ere darn'd stuff of yer'n is freezin' in my daylight," says I.
"You eat too much," says he.
"I tell yer I did n't," scream'd I, "I know what's a'f, an' what's too much, without askin' you, an' if you don't leave off snickerin' I'll spile your face."

"He cottoned right down, and sed he did n't mean any hurt, an' ax'd me if I'd better take some gin. I told him I would. So I took a putty good horn an' left the shop."

"Arter I got out, I felt better for a minit or so, but I hadn't gone far afore the gripes took me agin, an' I went into another shop an' took some more gin; then I set down on the State House steps, and there I set and set, but did n't feel darn'd a mite better. I begun to think I was goin' to kick the bucket, and then I tho't of father an' mother an' old Spanker—that's father's old horse, an' when I thought that I should never see them agin, I fairly blubbered. But then I happened to look up an' see a dozen boys grinnin' at me, I tell you, me, I tell you, it riz my dander—that had got down below axo—rite up agin. I sprang an' lem like a wild cat, hollerin' out that I would shake their tarmal gizzards out, and the way the little devils scamper'd was a caution. But arter the excitement of the race was over, I felt worse agin, an' I could n't help groanin' an' screechin' as I went along."

At last I tho't I'd go to the theatre, but afore I get there the gripes got so strong that I had to go behind a meetin' house and lay down and holler. Arter a while I got up an' went into a shop an' eat half a dollar's worth of bil'd istsers with four pickled cucumbers, and wound up with a glass of brandy. Then I went into the theatre and sed the plays, but I felt so tarmal that I could not see any fun in 'em, for I don't think the istsers and the cucumbers dun me up, but still it went on gripe, gripe. I groaned all the time, an' once in a while I was obliged to screech, kinder easy. Everybody stared at me, an' somebody holler'd—"turn him out," once or twice. But at last, just as the nigger Ortelio was going to put the piller on his wife's foot to smother her, there cum 'sich' a twinge thro' me, that I rally tho't I was bustin' an' yelled out—"oh! dear! oh! scissers!" so loud that the old theatre rung agin. Sich a row you never seed; the nigger dropped the piller, Dautenionmy—or what you call her—there his wife jumped off the bed and ran, while everybody in the theatre was all up in a muss some roarin', luffin, some awarin'. The upshot of it was, the perlice carried me out of the theatre and told me to make myself scarce."

Wal, I didn't feel any better I went into a shop close by, an' called for two glasses of brandy, arther swallerin' it. I went into the tavern. I set down by the window and tried to think I felt better, but 'twas no go; that blessed old engine was still wallowin' away inside; so I went out and eat a quarter's worth of istsers an' a piece of mince pie. Then I went back an' told the tavern keeper I felt kinder sick, and that I'd take some Castor oil, a mouthful of cold meat and a strong glass of whiskey punch, an' then go to bed. He got the fixens, which I took an' went to bed.

But, tell yer what, I had rather a poor night. Sometimes I was awake groanin', an' when I was asleep I'd better bin awake, for I had sich powerful dreams. Sometimes I thought I was skinnin' a bar, an' then by some hocuspocus 'twould all change 'other side to, an' the fatal critter would be a skinnin' me."

Then agin, I'd dream that I was rollin' logs the boys, an' 'jist as I'd be a shoutin' out—"now then—here she goes!"—everything would get reversed agin—I was a log, an' the boys were pryin' me up with their handspikes—"Then I'd wake up an' screech an' roar—then off to sleep agin—to dream that Spanker had run away with me, or that father was whoppin' me, or some other play thing till mornin'."

When I got up I hadn't any appetite for breakfast, an' the tavern keeper told me that if I was goin' to carry on screamin' and groanin' as I had the night before, my room was better than my company."

"I hain't," said Mr. Spike in conclusion, "I hain't bin to Portland since, but if I live to be as old as Methusalem, I shall never forget that all-fired Ice Cream."

Choice Miscellany.

THE SWEARER REQUIRED.—On a certain occasion General Washington invited a number of his fellow officers to dine with him. While at the table one of them uttered an oath. The General dropped his knife and fork in a moment and in his deep undertone and characteristic dignity and deliberation, said, "I thought that we all supposed ourselves gentlemen." He then resumed his knife and fork, and went on as before. The remark struck like an electric shock, and, as was intended, did execution, as his remarks in such cases were very apt to do. No person swore at the table after that. And after dinner the officer referred to, remarked to his companion, "that if the General had struck him over the head with his sword, he could have borne it; but the honest thrust which he gave him was too much." It was too much for a gentleman. And it is hoped that it will be too much for any one who pretends to be a gentleman.

SUICIDE OF A DOG.—The Boston Chronicle vouches for the authenticity of the following story:
During the past week a gentleman living in the south part of the city, near the track of one of our railroads, intending to give a dinner party to some friends, purchased for his table a fine piece of venison, which to his taste was as inviting a feast as could be conceived of. The delicate joint duly arrived home, and was hung up, until it might be wanted, in the sick-room. This gentleman has been for a year or two the owner of a fine dog, much attached to his master, who, in turn, esteemed the faithful creature highly. Now it unfortunately happened that this piece of meat was hung low enough to be within reach of "Bruno," who, being unable to resist the temptation, seized upon it and devoured the major part. He was detected by his master in Aggravate delictis, and present rage outweighing past friendship, the poor fellow was severely beaten and kicked out of doors. He returned, however, soon after, but with a dejected and lang-log look, which he maintained for a day or two, when he disappeared altogether. Search being made, his body, severed from the head and chest, was found on the railroad track, a short distance from the house, the poor creature having ended a life which was no longer bearable, by a voluntary death. His master, who had repented his harshness, had for some time endeavored to face the impression by acts of kindness, but all to no purpose. "Bruno" had been disgraced, and death alone could wipe out the stain.

REWARDS OF MECHANICAL GENIUS.—It is stated in the Scientific American that the right to a portion of Ward's patent shingle machine was recently sold in Albany for $35,000. A portion of Robertson's sewing machine has also been sold for $30,000. This is an invention which can be carried in the pocket, and will enable a seamstress to do in one day the ordinary labor of a week. Machines of this kind are about to be constructed in New Haven, Conn., by the Messrs. Jerome, at $10 a piece; the manufacturers expect to sell orders in January. Howe's patent sewing machine yields, it is said, $50,000 for licenses to use it, and Singer's machine puts $75,000 into the pockets of its owners. Rights to use the corn-planter have been sold to the amount of $30,000. The patent pump sold for $30,000. A portion of the right to an apple-paring machine, $25,000. Creator's patent car-break, $300,000. Such rewards as these, for American inventions are certainly stimulating to mechanical genius, and the only wonder is that there are not ten mechanical inventions where one now exists, where there is so wide a field for its exercise in almost every department of business.

A BEAUTIFUL SMILE.—A few days since a lovely little child of four summers was buried in this town. On leaving the house of its parents, the clergyman, Rev. Mr. Jay, plucked up by the roots a beautiful little "forget-me-not," and took it with him to the grave.

After the little embryo of humanity had been deposited in the grave, the clergyman, holding up the plant in his hand, said:
"I hold in my hand a beautiful flower which I plucked from the garden we have just left. By taking it from its parent home, it has withered, but I here plant it in the head of this grave and it will soon revive and flourish."

"So with the little flower we have just planted in the grave. It has been plucked from its native garden, and has withered, but it is transplanted into the garden of Immortality, where it will revive and flourish in immortality, glory and beauty."

THE NOVELTIES OF UTAH.—A private letter from Provo City, Utah county, U. T., (fifty miles from Great Salt Lake,) contains the following items of intelligence:
"We live in sight of snow the year round. We can, as it were, pick flowers with one hand, and gather snow with the other. It is warm in the valleys, healthy, pleasant and fruitful, with seldom any rain, but we have plenty of mountain streams to irrigate our fields and gardens, so that the latter do not suffer for want of moisture. We have no fever and ague; there is always a mountain breeze which affords us a very pure atmosphere. Groceries are very high; coffee and sugar sell at fifty cents per pound; calico from twenty to thirty cents per yard, and other things are in proportion. We have been very busily engaged in making sugar, which is manufactured from a sort of honey dew or sugar coating, which falls on the leaves of the cottonwood trees, and resembles the frosting on sugar. There have been several thousand pounds of sugar made from this substance within a few days, and it sells readily at forty cents per pound."

A SHIPWRECKED INFANT'S ESCAPE.—During the raging of the storm at Hollyon, on Saturday week, in one of the standard vessels was a poor woman and her infant. Beholding but little, if any chance of escape for herself, she yet clung to the possibility of saving the life of her child. Maternal affection is quick as thought. She therefore forms the desperate resolution of committing her child to the mercy of the waves. Carefully wrapped up in flannel, the child is placed into a hamper and lowered into the sea. A tumultuous wave received it for a moment, and in another, the hamper was hurled on the beach. The child is saved, and delivered to his mother, for in a brief time after, she also by the blessing of the Almighty is saved.

CONGRESS.
Come home, come home, the people say,
You growling, snarling, quarrelling set;
You're only there to draw your pay,
And make the people foot the debt.
The only news by mail that comes,
And by every other source we get,
We carry carefully to our homes,
When we read in disgust, there is no Speaker yet.

THE FOLLOWING anecdote is told of a very clever fellow, who has recently joined the Sons of Temperance:
After becoming a "Son," he went to Mobile on business, and was taken ill there. The physician was called, and on examining him, pronounced him in a very dangerous condition, and prescribed brandy. The sick man told him he could not take it. The doctor insisted that it was a proper remedy, but the patient told him he would not take it. The doctor said he must take it or he would surely have spasms.
"Well," said the Son of Temperance, "I will try a couple of spasms first."

ADVERTISING.—"Ah Sam, so you've been in trouble, eh?"
"Yes, Jim, yes."
"Well, well, cheer up, man; adversity rises up and shows up our better qualities."
"Ah but adversity did n't try me; it was a county judge, and he showed up my worst qualities."

AN agent soliciting subscribers for a book, showed the prospectus to a man who, after reading "one dollar in boards, and one dollar and twenty-five cents in sheep," declined subscribing, for, as he considered, a very good reason, viz: he might not have heard or sheep enough on hand when called upon for payment.

THE TATTER.—There is no being on the habitation globe more degenerated and more contemptible than the tatter. Vicious principles, want of honesty, servile meanness, despicable insidiousness, form its character. Has he will in attempting to display it he makes himself a fool. Has he friends? By unsatisfyingly disclosing their secrets, he will make them his most bitter enemies. Does he covet favor from any one? He attempts to gain it by slandering others. His approach is feared, his person hated, his company unsought, and his sentiment despised, as emanating from a heart fruitful with guile, teeming with iniquity, loaded with envy, hatred and revenge.

THE PITTSFIELD Eagle says great regard for the comfort of his fellow passengers, but not much for his dog, was manifested by a French man who took the cars at Pittsfield, last week, for N. Y. The animal was a valuable one and he did not like to leave him, nor did he like to take him into the cars, to the discomfort of the passengers, so procuring a stout cord, he attached one end to the dog's collar, and the other end to the back of a rear car. The train went out Bridgeport with a brass collar, and a dog's ear attached. Considerable dog was strewn along the track.

"These are astonishing feats," said an ardent admirer of the sports of the ring to Mrs. Partington, at the circus the other evening—"astonishing feats." "Yes," said the old lady, "so they are astonishing feat, and considerable legs too, to judge at this distance." She looked at Ike, who sat by the curb watching the clown, with his eyes full of wonder and his hands full of pea nuts, and she reached over to his honor the mayor, and asked him if he thought the "revolving by the whole troupe would have a dilatory tenderness on the boy."

A WIFE'S RIGHTS.—"Wife," said a married man, looking for a boat jack, after she was in bed, "I have a place for all things, and you ought to know it by this time."
"Yes," replied she, "I ought to know where you keep your late hours, but I don't."

AN old cynic, at a concert the other night, read in the programme the title of a song, viz: "Oh give me a cat in the valley I love." Reading it over attentively, the old fellow finally growled, "Well, if I had my choice, I should ask for a bulldog."
